

Sothorn and Marlowe Come to Poli's

"Dear Me" for National and Charles S. Gilpin for Garrick Next Week.

E. H. Sothorn and Julia Marlowe will appear at Poli's Theater for seven performances, beginning Monday night. "Twelfth Night" will be seen on Monday night and Saturday matinee; "Hamlet" on Tuesday and Saturday nights; "The Merchant of Venice" on Wednesday and Friday nights, and the only performance of "The Taming of the Shrew" on Tuesday night.

The advance mail orders indicate that the famous stars will equal the tremendous receipts they played to on their last visit to Washington. Playgoers are urged to note that the curtain rises at 8 o'clock sharp at night and 2 o'clock sharp at the Saturday matinee, and no one will be seated during the action of the plays.

NATIONAL—

"Dear Me."

"Dear Me," one of John Golden's successful laughter-plays, will be offering at the National Theater next week. Grace La Rue and Hale Hamilton are co-starring in this "comedy with songs," as it is termed. Both are exceedingly popular locally and, as the comedy has already enjoyed prosperous runs in New York, Chicago and other theatrical centers a big week is anticipated.

This is Miss La Rue's first venture on the dramatic stage, although her talents and personality have won her fame in vaudeville, the Ziegfeld Follies and on the concert platform. Hale Hamilton is a light comedian well-known to Broadway audiences.

"Dear Me" was written by Mr. Hamilton and Luther Reed and staged by Winchell Smith, responsible for "Lightnin'" "The First Year," "Turn to the Right" and other noted John Golden successes. The early scenes are laid in a home for artistic and literary failures. The last two acts show cross sections of theatrical and studio life in New York.

SHUBERT-GARRICK—

"The Emperor Jones."

After one false start, "The Emperor Jones," Eugene O'Neill's much talked-of drama, is again announced for the Shubert-Garrick December 11. There is every reason to believe that this time there will be no postponement of dates, for "The Emperor Jones" is filling a three weeks' engagement at the Walnut Street Theater, Philadelphia, and the logical movement is the Shubert-Garrick Theater, this city.

Charles S. Gilpin continues, of course, in his amazing creation of the central figure, Emperor Brutus Jones, a self-crowned ruler of a West Indian island with a background of Pullman cars, prison cells and a tramp steamer as a means of escape from merited punishment in the States.

The original Provincetown Players' company supports Mr. Gilpin, and this includes, by the way, Bernard Fryer and Matthew Shelds, Jr., Howard University boys who took part in the presentation of "The Emperor Jones" given at the Shubert-Belasco Theater a year or so ago. These two boys have been on tour with the company all of this season. Cleon Throckmorton, who designed and executed the fantastic settings, is a Washington boy also.

The players offer as a curtain-raiser the amusing satire on psycho-analysis, "Suppressed Desires," written by George Cram Cook, founder and director of the Provincetown group, and Susan Glaspell. Members of the Players appearing in both "Suppressed Desires" and "The Emperor Jones" are Cecil Cleavelly, long a member of the John Barrymore companies; Clement O'Loughlin formerly with the Irish Players; Elizabeth Brown, Emily Taft, daughter of Lorado Taft, the sculptor; Agnes Miller, Jane Evans, Walter Rice and others. Adolph Klabauer is managing the tour.

LOEW'S PALACE—

"Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford."

"Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," the brilliant Cosmopolitan production, based on the world-famous stories of the same name by George Randolph Chester, and the stage play by George M. Cohan, will be presented as the dominant photoplay attraction of the program at Loew's Palace Theater for the full week beginning next Sunday afternoon. It has been directed by Frank Borzage, who made the immortal screen version of "Humoresque," and its notable cast is headed by Sam Hardy, recently seen in support of Miss Lenore Ulric in "Kiki" at the National Theater here; Norman Kerry, Doris Kenyon, Diana Allen, and many others.

The story concerns the financing adventures of "Get-Rich-Quick" Wallingford and his companion-in-adventure, "Blackie" Daw, who descend upon the little town of Eastburg, fully intending to victimize the snugly complacent citizens thereof, but who, having launched a weird manufacturing enterprise, find the thing succeeded beyond their wildest dreams, and resulting in a complete commercial and social metamorphosis of the sleepy little mid-Western town.

Manager Beatus has arranged to give the showing of this splendid and enthralling Cosmopolitan production a program background of unusual and remarkable appeal.

B. F. KEITH'S—

Belle Baker.

Belle Baker, "the incomparable," will lead the van of vaudeville at B. F. Keith's Theater next week with Ella Retford, the famous English character comedienne, as the supporting stellar attraction.

Harriet and Marie McConnell will be heard in "Thrills and Fills," and Mr. and Mrs. Coburn will play "Loneliness," a tragic-farce comedy, by George V. Hobart.

Others will be Bert and Betty Wheeler in "Bits of Everything," the Marmala sisters and company in a drama dance, Pietro, the piano accordionist, Roy & Arthur and the usual house features.

Next Sunday at 3 and 8:15 w. be the last chance to see the current bill offering "Babe" Ruth, Wellington Cross and others.

GAYETY—

Greenwich Village Review.

Entertainment of the highest quality, with diversity in an unlimited measure, is promised by the producers of "The Greenwich Village Review," the attraction at the Gayety next week. Touching on the timely subjects of the day, this production offers something strictly along new lines of comedy, which at all times succeeded in keeping an audience in a permanently good humor.

Frank Harcourt takes the lead, supported by Tom Senna, Kitty Glaser, Shaw and Lee, Libby Hart, Gertrude Webber, Al Uils and Ida Bonard, and a bevy of beautiful blondes and brunettes.

SHUBERT-BELASCO—

"Chuckles of 1921."

Clark and McCullough, in "Chuckles of 1921," the largest act in vaudeville will headline the program at the Shubert-Belasco, beginning next Sunday afternoon.

The company that boasts a personnel of fifty people, including a large number of pretty girls, also has for assistance in comedy, full blooded African lion. Those featured prominently in "Chuckles" include Emily Earle, Jack Edwards, Pauline Anderson, Ruth Wheeler (Continued on Page 27.)
